NOTICE

Dear Valued Customer,

Thank you for your continued trust and support.

In recent times, telecom and online fraud cases have been on the rise. Fraudsters often impersonate company staff to forge chat records and emails, falsely claiming that "our company's receiving account has been changed," and inducing customers to remit payments to fraudulent accounts. This has resulted in substantial financial losses.

In order to prevent any losses to your side, our company hereby issues the following solemn notice:

I. Our bank account will not be changed arbitrarily.

Under normal circumstances, we will not change our receiving account on a temporary or frequent basis. Since our IPO application in 2017, we have not changed our receiving account for nearly a decade. Should you receive any notice claiming "account change" "urgent payment" or "time-limited transfer", please remain vigilant and do not act upon it.

II. Any change of receiving account will be made through formal procedures.

Should a change of receiving account become necessary for special reasons, we will publish an official notice on our official website, provide written documentation bearing the company seal, and issue a formal notification by email. The email address must end with @evetar.com (please verify carefully — not a single letter should differ). In addition, we recommend that you verify by telephone or video call with your designated sales representative. Any notice of account change received through other ways shall not be regarded as our official intent.

III. Please verify prior to making any payment.

Prior to remitting payment, please confirm with us through the following official channel:

Official website: http://www.evetar.com/

Should you encounter any suspicious circumstances, please contact us immediately for verification. Do not rush to transfer funds due to pressure, intimidation, or promised discounts.
